What's worse — waking up to the shriek of an alarm clock, or being late for work? You'd think that the beeping would make you get up and turn it off, thus waking you up, right? So why on earth is that snooze button being used so often? Originally, I also had trouble waking up to a traditional alarm clock because I couldn't stand the wailing — it sounded so terrible! Right when I heard it, I'd instantly hit the Snooze button.. At work, schedule follow up appointments with clients, set break reminders, run the office radio, set project timers, or discreetly monitor employee workspaces.
